"Limbo" is about modern nomadic life and the tension created? by deconstruction of expressional means in documentary, video, dance and performance. Sitting in an airplane, not anymore "there", starting point, but not yet "there", the destination. Watching from the eye bird point of view at the borderless sky. Images of airplane and flight create a place that is no place, a metaphoric frame to the "in-between". Gestures from the aviation world security check and safety demonstration is broken into language of dance. "Limbo" is at the same time a world of excitement and danger, unlimited space and lawful order. (Text from the program by David Yaron)

Was Born in Alamo (The Gypsy's song) (Dionysis Tsaknis/Gritos de Guerra)

I have no place

And I have no landscapes

I have no homeland.

With my cold fingers I make a fire and with my heart I sing to you

The chords of my heart are crying
